PREFACE

To record and portray the manifold aspects of school life is the primary purpose of a yearbook. We, of the 1966 Chronicle staff, have tried to highlight each event of the school year in order that we might help you recall the excitement, the joys, and the sorrows of this past wonderful year. This year was the beginning of a new era as Danville Junior College celebrated simultaneously its twentieth anniversary and the acquisition of its own campus. To effectively convey the enthusiasm and loyal support of the student body, we have deviated from our traditional colors of green and white and have substituted in their place a brilliant red and silver, symbolizing our heartfelt pleasure for this accomplishment. It is the sincere wish of the entire staff that the Chronicle of 1966 may serve as a pleasant reminder of this eventful year at Danville Junior College.

DEDICATION

TWENTIETH BIRTHDAY FOR DANVILLE JUNIOR COLLEGE

At the Faculty Forum in October, Danville Junior College faculty celebrated the twentieth birthday of Danville Junior College, which began as an extension center of the University of Illinois in 1946. Executive Dean Mary Miller serves D.J.C. birthday cake to Mr. Ronald Eldred, the latest instructor to join the full-time faculty. Miss Mary Diller, the first D.J.C. full-time instructor, holds the anniversary cake.

WOMAN OF THE YEAR
EXECUTIVE DEAN MARY MILLER
OF DANVILLE JUNIOR COLLEGE

In June, Danville Business and Professional Women's Club named Executive Dean Mary Miller Danville's Woman of the Year. Dean Miller's fame, however, reaches far beyond the confines of Danville. She is listed in many books of "Who's Who," among them the Dictionary of International Biography. She is the only woman who is dean of a junior college in Illinois and is secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Association of Junior Colleges. She has published several plays and articles. She received both her B.A. and M.A. at the University of Illinois but has also earned credit hours at six other universities throughout the United States. Honors she has received in the fields of English and Speech are numerous. Above all these, we think of Dean Miller, for the many things she has done and is doing to give Danville a junior college.

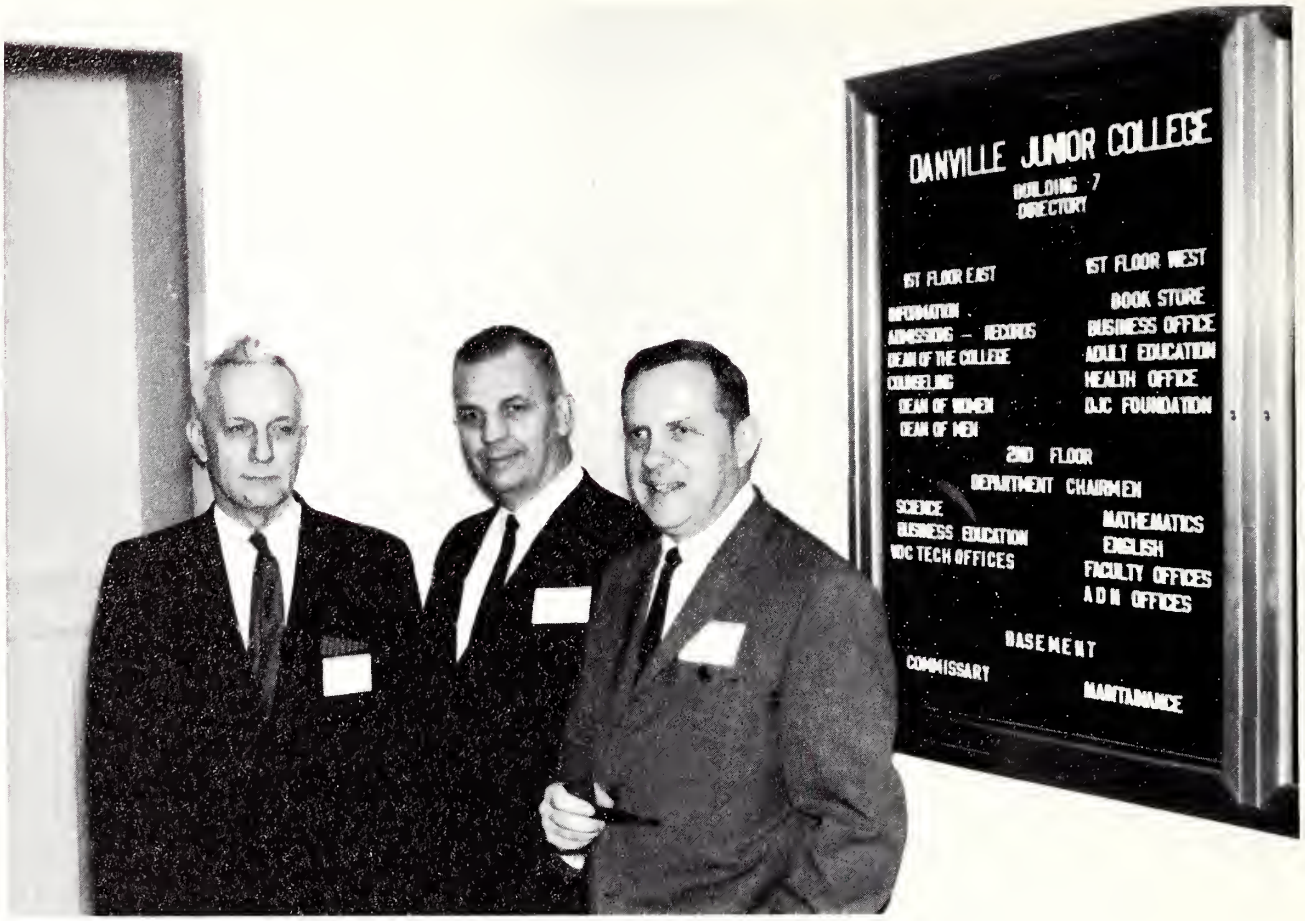
MR. JOHN S. GLEASON, JR.
VETERANS ADMINISTRATOR

Veterans Administrator John S. Geason, Jr. receives the key to Danville from John Nichols, Danville Chamber of Commerce president.

In December Veterans Administrator John S. Gleason, Jr., came from Washington, D.C., to Danville to make the V.A. Hospital buildings available for Danville Junior College. He is shown discussing plans with Ralph Swanson, school board president; L.W. Jaffe, president of the junior college foundation board; and Dr. Otto Schaefer, director of the V.A. Hospital in Danville.

FIRST CITIZEN AWARD TO DR. OTTO SCHAEFER

Dr. Otto Schaefer, director of the Veterans Administration Hospital, was awarded Danville's First Citizen Award by the American Business Club of Danville in grateful acknowledgement for his efforts toward making the V.A. Hospital available for Danville Junior College. Students, faculty, and administration of D.J.C. add their voices in tribute to Dr. Schaefer. Here Dr. Schaefer is shown receiving the First Citizen Award from Jack Stewart, president of the American Business Club. Superintendent David H. Radcliffe, speaker for the presentation, is shown at the right.



DANVILLE JUNIOR COLLEGE FOUNDATION FUND DRIVE CAMPAIGN

In March the newly organized Danville Junior College Foundation initiated a Fund Drive to raise $750,000 to convert V. A. Hospital buildings into classrooms for the Danville Junior College. By the first of June the Fund Drive had topped this mark by $150,000. Three men who carried much responsibility in the Fund Drive--Mr. Elmer Smith, president of Second National Bank; Mr. Charles Davis, general chairman of the Fund Drive; and Mr. Leonard Jaffe, president of Danville Junior College Foundation--smile over the Fund Drive's success, standing beside the building directory in Building 7.

FUND DRIVE CHAIRMEN

FUND DRIVE TOPS GOAL: With the scoreboard in the background, Danville Junior College Fund Drive chairmen, Thomas W. Stifler III and Mrs. William Engdahl discuss going over the goal with Thomas W. Conron, a vice chairman in the Pattern Gifts section.

FUND DRIVE AUDITORS: Cliff Kesler, Herman Towell, Roy Siebert, Chip Hutchison, Jerry Duemmerle, and James Stuart work late on the night of May 25, 1965.

ADULT EDUCATION CLASSES

Mr. Carmell watches while students figure details in Retail Buying.

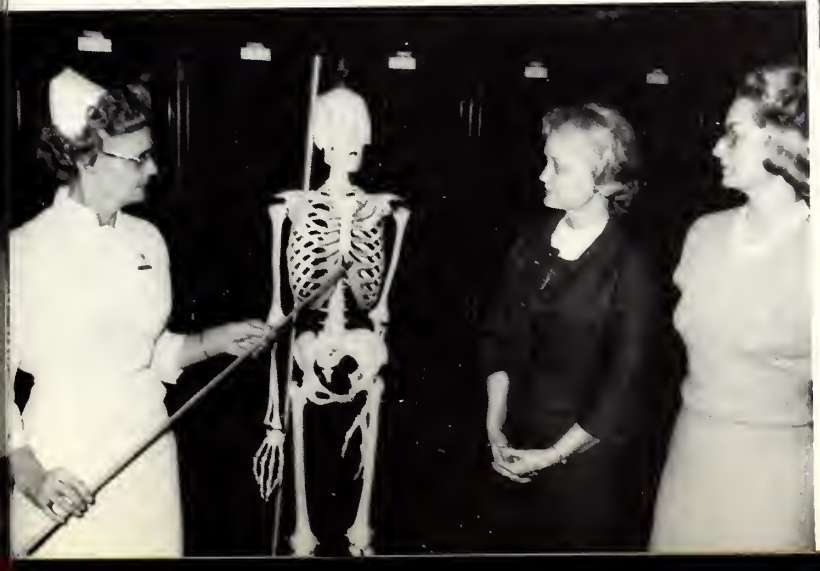
Mrs. Ooley's class concentrate on operating the Key Punch.

PRACTICAL NURSING CLASSES

Above, Norma Hunter takes Pearl Rohour's blood pressure in the class on Nursing Principles and Skills. Watching are Sandra Alexander, D.N.; Herma Pollett; and Eileen Ward.

At the left, is Mary Jo Sweet, R. N., demonstrating how near the heart the stomach is. The students are William Jennings and Charlene Compton.

Above, the class studies nutrition. They also seem to know about the heart and stomach. Diana Rull puts the skillet on and waiting are Margaret Fazio, Claire Snyder, and Mrs. Hazel LeCount, R.N.



Left. Does Adam have a missing rib? In the class on Body Structure and Function Esther Risher, R.N., Gladys Harrigan, and Norma McDowell ponder the question.

Classes

Dr. Gordon explains the structure of the microscope to students Sue Baker, Marlene Lucas, and Glenn Ross.

Classes

Mrs. Lightner and Michael Perry discuss a tricky Rhetoric assignment after class.

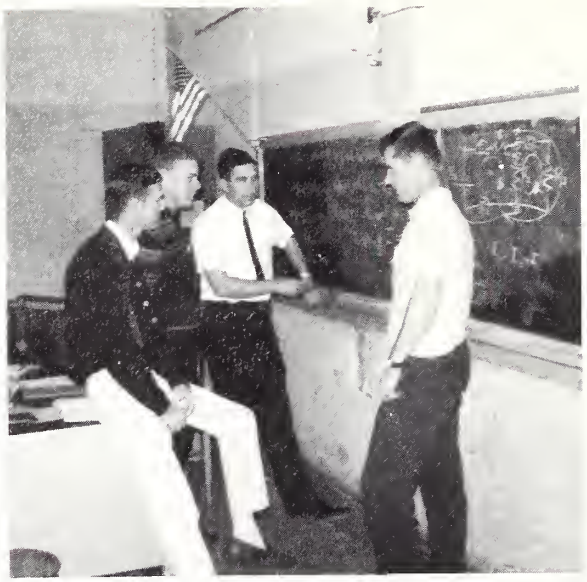
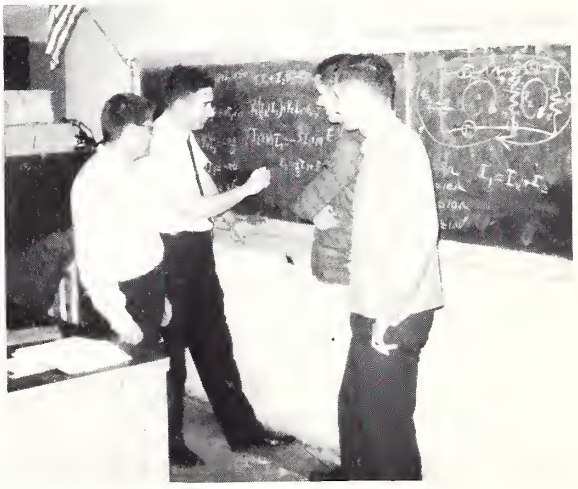
From the expressions of Raymond Rose, Bob Noone, and Evelyn Miller, the Rhetoric class is deeply engrossed in Mrs. Lightner's lecture.

Classes



Mr. Wilcox has a formula for everything and he proves it above to Robert Matingly, Robert Moulton, and Fred Bedard, and below to Tom Cohoon, Mike Gony, and Mike Colleen.



At this stage of the game the brown fox moves quicker than ten fingers. Oh, well, who wants to type more than five words a minute! Miss Weinard observes her typing class.

"All the world's a stage..." J. L. Heaton, Regina Walker, and Charles Bedinger seem almost to be watching some of the roles of men being portrayed, as Mrs. Morrison takes them back into the days of Shakespeare and the Elizabethan theater.

Classes

Something unusual here, the teacher, Mrs. Dabelko, is happier about the themes she is returning than are students Marianne Clark, Harold Lowry, and Howard Charles.

"This is a window; now make a doorway for yourself," says Mr. Davis to Herb Barnhart and Phil Smith in Technical Drawing.

Classes

The old soldier, Mr. Britton, maps the line of attack, while two P.F.C.'s in Social Science--Richard Craig and Don Allen--watch his strategy.

This is a discussion on political affiliations? Maybe Miss Diller, Mrs. Lambright, and Mr. Wyer all belong to the same party.

"O.K.!. This is a football," Mr. Evemeyer says to the P.E. class. Tom Snyder and Larry Kincade ponder this statement. "It's a game of brawn; get your shoulder muscles to working." Two unknowns demonstrate.

Classes

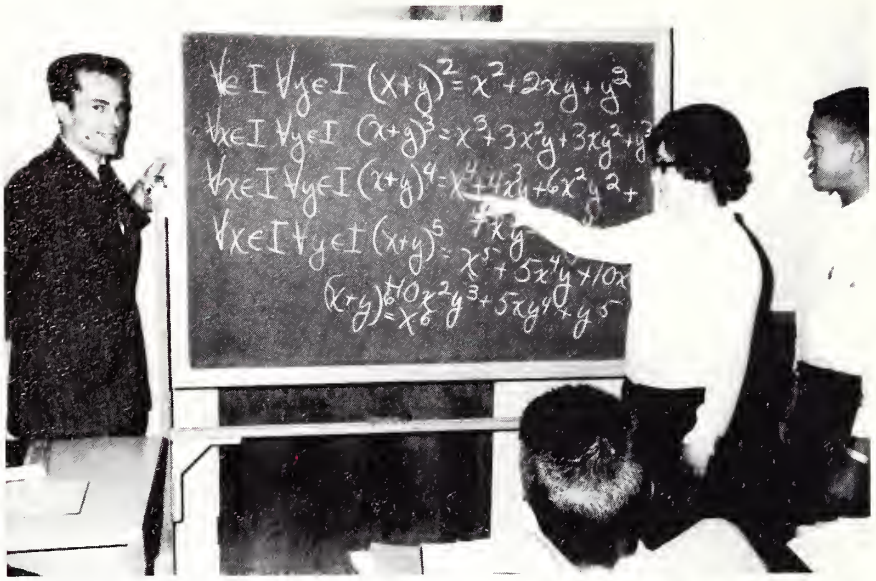
Left, maybe it's a demonstration on the Secret Service. At least, Steve Gilbert and Brad Pipkin stand staunch and guard with eagle eyes as Mr. Ronald Eldred lectures.

Classes



Karen Allison is attracted to an "X" to the fourth power, and it isn't even in a letter in code. Mr. Bodine and Robert Haskins listen to her explanation in math class.

Lorna Doone? Jane Eyre? Students Kelly Mavres, Evelyn Miller, and Alan Shields visit with Mr. Howe about his collection of old McCalls covers depicting heroines of early English novels.

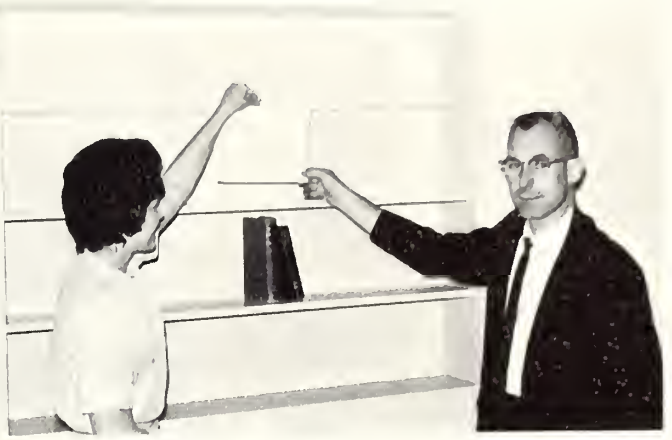
Classes



Mr. Zelinsky and Elizabeth Campbell, student librarian, demonstrate our first semester library facilities. But there will be rainbows of knowledge in volumes varied someday soon.

"I think their national anthem is named after this city," hazards frankophile Thomas Orsulak, while Miss Diffenderfer and Alice Coote check his degree of accuracy.

"Let's see what a 1620 digital computer can do with this deck of cards," Janet Blair wonders. Pat Stubbe, Frank Hanson, and Mr. Kistler watch with mounting suspense.

Classes

EDP is fun. You just play cards all day long. From East to West, Joe Tatar, Bill Barlow, Mary Ellen Meek, and Mr. Bettag.

"More wonderful than science fiction!" Now Karen Allison believes. Miss Campbell points the way, and Janice Williams in eagerness awaits.

The cycle of communication seems to be complete as Mr. Smith explains a speech situation to John Stewart and Natalie Stuebe.
